Burque PRIDE is Not For Sale!
By Father Frank Quintana

Blessed Oscar Romero Catholic Community is boycotting the ABQ Pride Parade for 2017. Pride has pandered too much to corporate interests. Corporations have co-opted our movement and have transformed it into a pursuit of consumerism over a pursuit of justice, a pursuit of revelry rather than a pursuit of community. While there is a time and place for partying, now is the time to get back to our roots and build our community to defend against these attacks on our civil liberties. The present administration is militant in its efforts to roll back any gains LGBTQIAA people have made in procuring their human rights! People of color, Immigrants, Trans-Folk and religious minorities in our community are once again under attack because of the boldness this administration has given to bigots. This administration has wielded attacks on water, the environment, and in this state poor families are facing the probability of a tax on food. We need to support one another. We find ourselves in the real possibility of ever expanding war because of “45.” Rather than a parade, we should be marching in protest. Rather than partying, we should be galvanizing for the fight that lies ahead, in the spirit of Stonewall.

Blessed Oscar is staging a March on Saturday, June 10. It will begin at 9:30am at the UNM Bookstore with a few speeches, then at 10am, marching up Central on the sidewalks, not blocking any traffic, to the site of the old Pulse bar on Central Ave. SE & Montclaire. There will be a memorial at a Descanso there at 11am. We will honor people of color, and all those who lost their lives in Orlando’s PULSE Nightclub shooting. We will conclude with a few words, and then march over to the 7th Annual Family Pride Celebration at Morningside Park, organized by Young Women United. Please watch for details on the “Burque PRIDE is NOT 4 Sale” Facebook event, and at facebook.com/pridesnotforsale or email quintanf@msn.com.

Let us march for Justice for one and for all.

Jewish Voice for Peace-ABQ Hosts Palestinian Scientist Mazin Qumsiyeh

Professor Mazin Qumsiyeh connects the dots joining nature conservation, Christianity, Islam, environmental justice, climate science, museums and botanical gardens, Israel, Palestine, and peace. After a career on the faculties of the University of Tennessee, Duke, and Yale, Professor Qumsiyeh now teaches and researches at Bethlehem and Birzeit Universities in the Occupied Palestinian Territories. At Bethlehem University, a Catholic co-educational institution serving Christian and Muslim students, he is director of the Palestine Museum of Natural History and the Palestine Institute for Biodiversity Research.

Professor Qumsiyeh is the author of The Bats of Egypt, Mammals of the Holy Land, Sharing the Land of Canaan, and more than 130 research papers. He received the 2011 Social Courage Award from the Peace and Justice Studies Association at the Christian Brothers University in Tennessee. He will guide us on a tour of science and peace, conflict resolution and ecological conservation, human rights and nature, at Nahalat Shalom, 3606 Rio Grande NW on Tuesday, June 20, 7pm. For more information, email JVP ABQ at Albuquerque@jvp.org.

#PurposeIsPeaceAndJustice

A Testimonial by Justin Allen

I used drugs for about 20 years, and because of my addiction, I spent 17 years in prison. While there, I was able to get sober because I was actively involved in helping other inmates to achieve sobriety. I worked as a mentor, got my Associate's Degree and was actively involved in every self-help program within the Department of Corrections (despite the lack of them). I actually learned to be “free” on the inside through yoga and spirituality, and was guiding others who really needed the help. I guess you could say that I earned my status and respect while I was there. I had found my purpose.

But there was one problem I had though...every time I got released from prison, I'd relapse almost immediately. It seemed like I could not put into practice everything I had learned and taught in prison. I could not get a job because of my background. I became discouraged and depressed. Looking back, I think I subconsciously sabotaged my own freedom to get back the “balance” that I had in prison.

In June of last year I began volunteering at the Albuquerque Center for Peace and Justice because they didn’t tell me “NO” when I applied. I began meeting new people, socializing and connecting with other like-minded people (activists). It was then that I realized that a lot of the work I had been doing in prison was activism. Activism is what kept me sober while I was in prison. It was here at the Peace Center that I discovered my purpose in society. It was here that I discovered I am a Human Rights Activist, and that most of the social justice issues the Peace Center deals with directly affect me and my loved ones. I have been sober for almost a year now; this is the longest I’ve been clean outside of prison. The Peace Center has provided a space for me to continue helping others and to heal myself, by allowing me to teach yoga here. Some of my students are sober ex-convicts, and I've also helped three others gain employment, who have had trouble getting a job due to their backgrounds.

I am going to continue using the space at the Peace Center to address issues concerning recidivism, addiction, and our Criminal Justice System. My goal is to help others free themselves from that “win-lose” system and guide them back into the natural order. I hope to help others find their voice and purpose. Susan Schuurman asked me what the Albuquerque Center for Peace and Justice means to me... it means that I do not have to sabotage my freedom to have a space to fulfill my purpose. My purpose is here, not in a prison cell. The Peace Center has provided the space for my voice to be heard so that I can teach what I've learned and hopefully save others from having to endure the hardships of prison/addiction, and perhaps even to help others find their way out of that “win-lose” system. I want others to find their way back into the natural order as I have. Today I want to thank the Albuquerque Center for Peace and Justice for helping me get my life back. It was through this organization that I was able to develop the routine of going to work again, develop responsibility, self-worth and a sense of purpose. I have since found full-time employment and I am happily married. To show my appreciation for the Peace Center, I intend to always be a part of this organization. I am rooted here.

Former front desk volunteer Justin Allen made this incredibly moving statement at the Albuquerque Center for Peace and Justice’s Annual Membership Meeting on April 8, 2017. Justin leads a free yoga class called Decarcerate Yoga every Wednesday from noon-1pm at the Peace Center.
Volunteer Spotlight

By Adrienne Mathewson, P&J Volunteer/Membership Coordinator

We congratulate volunteer Megan Cohen on her graduation from the UNM Anderson School of Management. She says that along with her volunteer work she is a “marketing specialist for a private practice OMS” and is pursuing a career in market research. She enjoys the scientific approach that marketing research takes and hopes to use her findings to “disrupt current channels and push businesses towards sustainably rooted practice.” Megan helps at the front desk, swing dance, and tabling events. Congratulations from all of us at the ABQ Center for Peace & Justice.

ACLU “People Power” Mixer

The ACLU launched the major grassroots mobilization platform known as People Power in response to ominous threats posed by the Trump administration. People Power has been growing at an incredible speed in New Mexico, using direct activism to tackle some of Trump’s most harmful policies at the local level. The ACLU has provided a roadmap to get people started, but that roadmap is far from complete. Our New Mexico team will present state-based guidance for future actions and will unveil a New Mexico People Power resource page to ensure the ever-growing network of People Power activists can work in collaboration with our New Mexico staff to protect civil liberties throughout our state.

If you have not already joined the People Power team, the door is open. There will be a mixer Thursday, June 1, from 5:30-7pm at the Peace Center. Enjoy refreshments, network with fellow activists, learn about the ACLU’s mission in New Mexico, and help build the foundation of a movement. We can’t fight for civil liberties without you! We certainly won’t fix the dire problems facing our nation in a day, but we can promise you'll have a good time, make some new friends, and walk away with new ideas for fighting the Trump administration’s assaults on our civil liberties (and get some free goodies out of the deal). Hope to see you there! Contact: Ana Moran, ACLU of New Mexico Field Organizer, PO Box 566, Alb. NM 87103 or 266-5915 ext. 1012 (office).

The year is 2019. The country is in a frenzy of repression. Trump’s fantasy of prison and deportation for suspected aliens has gone into hyperdrive. Two people sit at a table to uncover what has happened and why. Angela Littleton plays Gloria, an African American historian. Quinn Mander is Rick, a security manager now in an orange jump suit.

Building the Wall is appearing at theatres across the country since Robert Schenkkan wrote it “in a white-hot fury” at the end of the 2016 election. The playwright says, “We no longer live in a world that is business as usual—Trump has made that very clear—and if theater is going to remain relevant, we must become faster to respond.” Schenkkan is the author of All the Way, a recent Broadway hit about LBJ starring Brian Cranston, and screenwriter of Hacksaw Ridge.

Movie and Music

P&J Movie Night partners with KNME as part of NM PBS’ Indie Lens Pop-up Series, to screen Real Boy, a documentary film by director Shaleece Haas, followed by old-time banjo music by Billy Stewart. Real Boy is the coming-of-age story of Bennett, a trans teenager with dreams of musical stardom. During the first two years of his gender transition, as Bennett works to repair a strained relationship with his family, he is taken under the wing of his friend and musical hero, celebrated trans folk singer Joe Stevens.

Reception 5:30pm, screening 6pm, Friday, June 16 at the Peace Center.
